The thesis was conducted under the supervision of Prof. Antonella Sbrilli Eletti and focused on the peculiar use of textile materials in the art production of Sara Enrico, an Italian artist who participated in the 59th Venice Biennale Arte; The Milk of Dreams. The work provides a comprehensive analysis of Sara Enrico's artistic production, highlighting both her creative processes and the relationship between her works and the textile medium. It explores how the artist engages with modernist tailoring by deconstructing its surfaces. The research demonstrates a continuity in her exploration of textiles, tracing an evolution from two-dimensional to three-dimensional forms.
